Being a hero or villain for charity

By Amanda Ma

17 June 20__

① Last month, a Heroes and Villains Obstacle Course charity event was organized by both the Social Services Club and the Sports Club in Kowloon Park. The race was held to raise funds for Homeless Help, a charity that benefits the homeless by providing them with 5 shelter, clothing, food and vocational training so that they can find work.

② The event was modelled after the challenging obstacle course on a well-known television game show. As the course on the show is extremely challenging and almost impossible to complete, we had to greatly simplify ours for the event! Members of the Sports Club provided us with much needed advice and support in designing our obstacles.
10 They also helped us in setting up everything at the venue and in making sure all contestants performed adequate warm-up exercises before competing on the still rather strenuous course.

③ Contestants were required to dress up as either superheroes or villains. They
15 could participate either individually or in teams. However, there were additional stations where they had to solve a series of codes and mental puzzles to advance. These puzzles were added to level the 20 playing field so that even those who were not athletic had a shot at winning.

④ On the day of the event, I was absolutely blown away by all the contestants' passion and dedication. I discovered that one contestant in the individual event
25 had spent six whole months crafting his impressive Iron Man costume from scratch! He did such an admirable job that I could swear he had just walked off a film set! He eventually won the prize for best homemade costume, even though parts of his costume broke off
30 when he was completing the course. It was heartbreaking to see how battered his costume had become by the time he reached the finishing line. Yet being a true superhero, he just brushed it off and smiled widely at the cheering spectators.

35 ⑤ Next was the team challenge, club president Jennifer Lee was Volunteer Viper and commanded Team Villains, while I was Captain Care-Cat, the leader of Team Heroes. Scaling a rock wall then wriggling through a tight tire tunnel in a caped cat
40 costume was no walk in the park since my cape kept getting caught on everything, yet it was so exhilarating! I also screamed myself hoarse from yelling encouragement at my teammates. It was a very close race with no clear winner till the very end!
45 The champion's trophy was eventually awarded to my team. Go, Team Heroes! One of my teammates was Homeless Help director Ronnie Song, a former gymnast who had once represented Hong Kong in the Olympics. He was dressed as his childhood hero,
50 Spiderman, and was definitely a valuable asset to my team. In the end, everyone was a winner and a hero because more than $50,000 was raised!

55 enjoyable and fulfilling activities every year!
